Terminal Illness Medical Attestation for a Disability Benefits Application Under the Canada Pension Plan

To the Physician or Nurse Practitioner

Instructions

Your patient is applying for Canada Pension Plan (CPP) disability benefits. This Terminal Illness Medical Attestation is to be used for those individuals with a terminal illness.

For the purposes of CPP, a terminal medical condition is a disease state that cannot be cured or adequately treated and is reasonably expected to result in death within six (6) months.

Applications from patients with a terminal illness receive priority handling. Our goal is to determine the patient's eligibility for CPP disability benefits within 5 business days of receiving a complete application, including the Terminal Illness Medical Attestation.

If your patient's prognosis does not meet the definition above, please complete the form Medical Report for Canada Pension Plan Disability Benefits (ISP2519) found online at www.canada.ca/esdc-forms instead.

To help us determine if they are eligible, please complete this form on their behalf. Note that we may contact you if we require additional information.

Under CPP legislation, Service Canada is responsible for deciding if a person is disabled. According to the legislation, a disability must be a mental and/or physical impairment(s) that is both severe and prolonged.

- Severe means that a person has a mental and/or physical disability that regularly stops them from doing any type of substantially gainful work/occupation; and
- Prolonged means that the disability is long-term and of indefinite duration or is likely to result in death.

The legal test for CPP disability is one of medical impairment and employability. In other words, does the severe and prolonged disability prevent the person from regularly working at any job? To decide if the disability meets this legal test, Service Canada looks at the combined impact of:

- the objective medical findings;
- the functional limitations, as reported by both the patient and their health care professional; and
- the person's age, education, and work experience.

Access to Personal Information
